School Board conditionally accepts fact-finder's report

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Dixon School Board President James Dixon today announced a conditional acceptance of the fact-finder's report submitted to the board and to the Dixon Teachers Association Oct. 3 in attempts to settle a teachers contract for 1975-76.

At a morning press conference, held in the board room at South Central School, Dixon called for "continued negotiations" between the two sides to resolve issues not fully covered in the report.

Another condition of the board's acceptance of the report is that the DTA accept board proposals not covered by the report. Dixon would not name specific areas yet to be resolved saying both sides are bound by an agreement not to discuss contract talks until a settlement is reached.

Dixon asked the content of the report be made public "and both parties be free to discuss the report," as a condition for its acceptance by the board.

The board president's remarks followed a 4½-hour meeting Tuesday during which members voted on the conditions under which they would accept the fact-finder's report, submitted by David Dolnick, Chicago. Asked if the vote to accept the report was a unanimous one, Dixon said the matter was voted upon in executive session and will remain secret.

DTA President Richard McCarthy, who spoke with reporters after the press conference, said a decision on release of the fact-finder's report will rest with the bargaining team and DTA membership. McCarthy said he could not speak for the membership on whether they would go along with the board proposal.

A DTA membership meeting is scheduled for this afternoon to discuss remaining issues, McCarthy said.

McCarthy said he was "disappointed" Dolnick chose not to make recommendations "on very serious issues" in contract talks.

The DTA voted to accept recommendations of the fact-finder's report prior to its submission with the hope that the board would take similar action.

Assuming the DTA and board reach early accord on remaining items within the teacher contract, Dixon said the fact-finder's report can be made public "within a few days."

The fact-finding process is the final step in the collective bargaining agreement between the two sides. Cost of the report to the DTA and to the board is $420 each.

As a sidelight to Tuesday's meeting, the board decided future negotiations "would best be conducted in a more open atmosphere," said Dixon.

"The publication of original demands, the meeting agendas and minutes and tentative agreements would seem appropriate," he said. "It is the intention of the board to open future negotiations... and give the public the opportunity to observe the operation of the district," Dixon said in a prepared statement.

Under the board proposal, bargaining sessions and working papers will remain secret.

Asked whether the DTA will accept a similar platform of openness with the public, McCarthy said "it will be up to the membership."

Lebanon cease-fire breaks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The cease-fire between Lebanon's warring Christian and Moslem factions broke down today as fierce fighting with mortars and automatic weapons erupted in Beirut.

Heavy casualties were reported, most businesses closed behind steel shutters and the state radio broadcast an appeal from security forces to "stop the massacre."

Witnesses said one mortar round exploded next to a bakery where housewives were lined up in a rush for bread, wounding 36 persons, and that another round exploded near a hospital in a Moslem district, leaving several dead and wounded.

Lebanon's civil strife is caused by Moslem efforts to gain more political power, now held largely by Christians; by the presence of armed Palestinian guerrillas the Moslems support and Christians oppose, and by leftists fighting for a better economic deal for the country's predominantly Moslem lower class.

The renewed fighting broke a five-day lull which had been marred only by scattered shooting incidents and an unsuccessful hijack attempt by Arab terrorists at Beirut airport Saturday.

The sound of explosions shook the battered Lebanese capital as it prepared to go back to work after the three-day Al Fitr holiday.

Marijuana seized in Dixon came in mail from Texas

Dixon Police disclosed today that part of the seizure which took place Monday at Lot 127, Chateau Estates in Dixon, included drugs mailed to that address from Mercedes, Tex.

Concealed within the confiscated parcel was a brick of marijuana believed to be of a better grade than that obtained from Northern Illinois. The package contained dishes and a large box with pecans in their shell. Underneath the pecans was concealed the brick of marijuana. Police say mothballs were also placed in the package, apparently to cover the odor of the marijuana.

The contents of the package have been fingerprinted and the investigation now involves United States postal authorities and the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration whose jurisdiction covers the interstate movement of illegal drugs.

Authorities in Mercedes, Tex., advised the Dixon department that they have also been conducting an investigation concerning some of the persons involved.

Dixon Police Chief Earl Kelchner said the search and arrest Monday was the result of several weeks investigation by his detectives. Eloy, Mario and Beverly Islas, charged with possession of the marijuana Monday, will appear Thursday in circuit court for preliminary hearing.

The police were able to obtain and execute a search warrant Monday after delivery of the package but before the parcel could be opened by anyone at the residence.

Shoplifting law is stiffened

A state law went into effect Oct. 1 which is designed to make shoplifting laws more a deterrent to the commission of a crime.

In addition to stealing, concealing, abandoning or knowingly depriving a merchant of use of or payment for merchandise, the new provision makes it a criminal offense to switch price tags, transfer merchandise from one container to another, intentionally under-ring a price, or remove shopping carts from a store.

The new law also allows parents of minors to be sued up to $500 for damages caused by their offspring. Violation of shoplifting laws is a felony carrying a one to three years sentence on persons with previous theft convictions in cases involving property valued at less than $150.

Mayors plead for revenue sharing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen mayors and other municipal officials asked Congress today to ensure the budgetary stability of cities by renewing the revenue sharing program that expires in 1976.

Baltimore Mayor William D. Schaefer said the cities need assurances of funding as they prepare their fiscal 1977 budgets this spring.

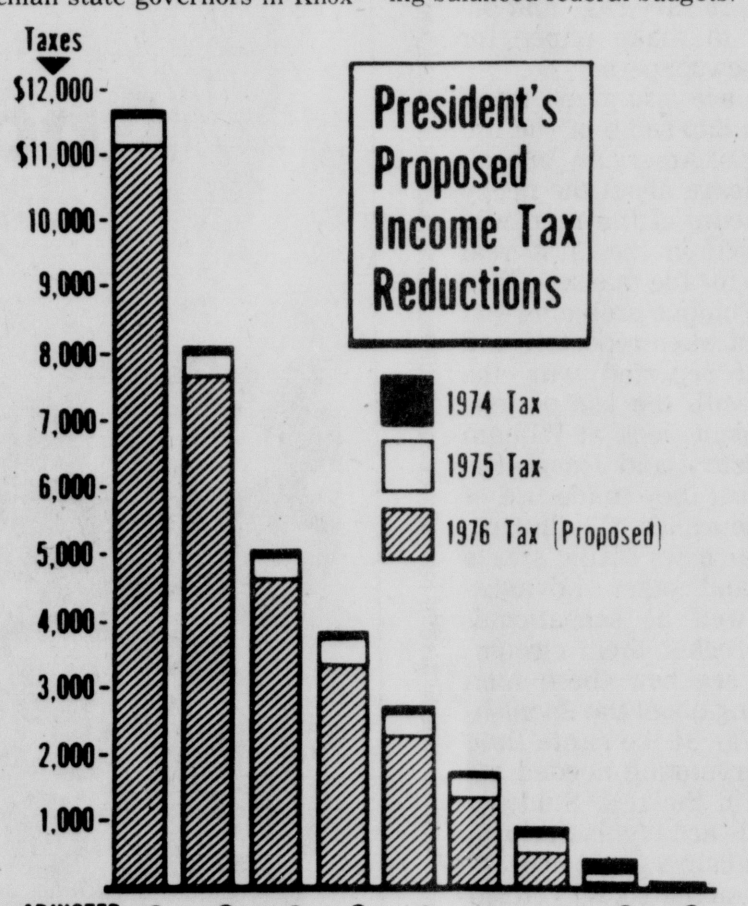

"Because of the current municipal bond market conditions, local governments are facing the necessity to consider pay-as-you-go financing in whole or in part for capital purposes heretofore funded by loans," Schaefer told the House subcommittee on intergovernmental relations and human resources.

New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, called for expansion of revenue sharing funding levels and a five-year extension of the program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, having urged a new tax-cut plan tied to curbs in federal spending, rejected a Republican governor's request for more federal funds and gave him a blunt lecture on balanced budgets.

Ford, who announced plans earlier this week for what he said was "the biggest single tax cut in our history," met Tuesday with seven Appalachian state governors in Knoxville, Tenn., and immediately was confronted with a plea for funds.

West Virginia Gov. Arch Moore told Ford more federal money is needed to keep Appalachian highway projects on schedule. Ford wryly recalled that most of the governors in the room had agreed with a Southern Governors Conference resolution calling for a constitutional amendment requiring balanced federal budgets.

PROPOSED TAX CUT— Chart shows how much a wage earner would save if the tax cuts proposed by President Ford are adopted by Congress. The cuts, amounting to $28 billion, would be put into effect only if Congress agrees to cut federal spending. The chart is for a family with two dependents. (AP Wirephoto)

Ford bluntly lectures governor on need for balanced budgets

Ford said, "Fellows, we can't have it both ways."

He said the government faces federal deficits in the current fiscal year of up to $70 million, adding, "If you have back-to-back deficits of $70 billion, you're going to have more and more troubles in trying to finance your own state and municipal governments."

As the President was touting his new tax cut and spending curb proposal, his proposal was meeting with four comments from Congress.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., called Ford's plan "an impossible one."

A Ways and Means subcommittee chairman, Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, criticized Ford's proposals to reduce corporate taxes and released figures showing that 142 major corporations paid less than half the standard corporate tax rate of 48 per cent last year. Vanik said eight companies paid no taxes while 18 others paid at a rate of 10 per cent or less.

Ford proposed enactment of $28 billion in permanent tax cuts for 1976 if Congress will agree to an identical cut in federal spending. He would require establishment of a $395 billion spending ceiling for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1.

Under Ford's $28-billion tax-cut plan, individual taxpayers would receive about $2.6 billion more in tax reductions in 1976 than they did in 1975. White House tax tables show that if the plan is enacted, a family of four with an income of $15,000 would pay $287 less in 1976 taxes than it will this year. A family of four with a $20,000 income would pay $310 less in 1976 than in 1975.

The tables show that a single person with a $10,000 income would pay $249 less and a single person earning $20,000 would pay $264 less.

Ullman's committee began work Tuesday on an assortment of bills to revise tax laws, including the Ford plan. Of Ford's demand for a spending ceiling, Ullman asked, "If the President wants a $395-billion budget, why doesn't he submit a $395 billion budget?"

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, appearing before the House panel to explain the Ford proposal, was asked by Ullman, "Are you sitting there with a straight face and saying that Congress can be expected to put a ceiling on a budget it hasn't seen, without knowing what priorities would be set — to blindly strike out with no information on the budget... and put a tax cut in place by January?"

Ullman called such a proposal "totally preposterous," adding, "I must say I am rather shocked that the administration would propose such a thing."

Simon argued that Congress could pledge itself to meet the ceiling, leaving details to be worked out later. He stressed that Ford is ready to veto any tax reduction plan not accompanied by a spending ceiling.

Rep. Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., said Ford had told GOP leaders that "if he has to veto 100 bills to hold down spending, he'll do it."

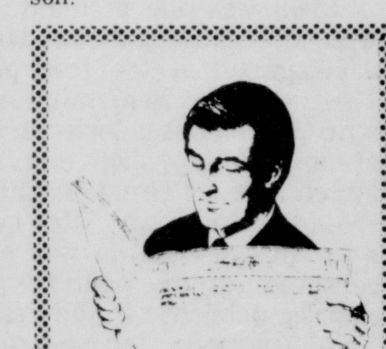

Ullman's criticism won the support of Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., who said imposing a spending ceiling before seeing the President's budget "is like tying infinity to zero — you get nothing."

Meanwhile, in a speech on the House floor, Vanik said the 142 companies had an aggregate income of $46 billion, but were able to reduce their tax liabilities "through entirely legal means."

Vanik listed the eight companies he said paid no 1974 income taxes and their 1974 adjusted net incomes as Ford Motor Co., $351.9 million; Lockheed Aircraft Corp., $29.8 million; Honeywell, $98.8 million; U.S. Industries, Inc., $17.9 million; American Airlines, $26.7 million; Eastern Airlines, $17.6 million; American Electric Power Co., $163.7 million; and Allstate Insurance Co. and subsidiaries, $137.3 million.

Companies which Vanik said paid at an effective rate of 10 per cent or less included Consolidated Edison; LTV Corp.; Occidental Petroleum Corp.; Chase Manhattan Corp.; Texaco, Inc.; Continental Illinois Corp.; Bankers Trust New York Corp.; Northwest Airlines, Inc.; Mobil Oil Corp.; Texasgulf; Pennzoil Co.; American Metal Climax, Inc.; American Motors Corp.; UAL, Inc.; Delta Airlines, Inc.; McDonnell Douglas Corp.; Bank America Corp.; and Commonwealth Edison.

Action against Holiday Inn

Alleged delinquent mortgages and franchise payments by owners of the Holiday Inn property in Sterling has prompted Rock River Savings and Loan, Rockford, to file suit against the owners. The Rockford Company is asking the property be turned over to the loan company.

Owners of the Holiday Inn property are James S. and Helen N. Kelly, Dan and Rose Siegel, and Theodore and Ruth Kristal. The suit alleges the owners have had a mortgage indebtedness balance of $643,218.33. In addition to the delinquent mortgages, the owners allegedly have failed to pay monthly franchise payments totaling $20,434.59 and $29,942.69 in 1974 real estate taxes. Rock River Loan Association is asking that the Holiday Inn property be turned over to the company. The suit was filed Thursday in Whiteside County Court against the owners, none of which are from the Sterling area.

A spokesman for the Holiday Inn, Inc., Memphis, Tenn., said the company is taking a "hands off" attitude in the legal matter because the suit is between the owners and the loan company. Officials did say, depending on the outcome of the suit, the franchise could be moved out of Sterling.

Judge L. E. Ellison presided at a preliminary hearing Saturday but the issue was continued to allow the owners time to review the allegations. The hearing will resume Thursday at 11 a.m.

Finance Committee faces demanding budget task

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

"We are all between a rock and a hard place," was an oft-repeated statement made Friday as members of the Finance Committee of the Lee County Board sought to convince officials of the need to lop off some requested expenditures to reduce the impending deficit in the General Fund.

After a daylong effort the committee pared $53,175 from the submitted budgets and learned the fund will receive an estimated $50,000 more in taxes because of a new state law which raises the tax-rate limit.

However, the anticipated deficit in the fund for next year still stood at $232,000.

Not considered yet by the committee is a request from the employees for a 12 per cent raise which is estimated to cost more than $105,000, or additional personnel requested by various offices.

Hardest hit so far by budget cuts has been the sheriff, who resisted the adjustments more strenuously than any other official appearing before the committee.

The request of Sheriff Ray Nehring originally was $431,000, but was reduced before Friday to $390,860 and on that day was dropped to $366,860.

The judges, whose budgets were deeply cut, were quite cooperative with the committee. Chief Judge James E. Bales went along with deducting $4,250 from the $7,450 requested, except salaries, and Circuit Judge Thomas Hornsby amicably agreed with the committee in dropping his spending request by $5,725 of the $13,425 submitted.

The budgets of County Clerk John

Stouffer and Circuit Clerk Harold Huffman, which are about the same as for the present year, so far have escaped any cuts by the committee.

County Treasurer Sharon Thompson readily concurred to reduce her next year's spending by $1,000, leaving her budget about $1,300 higher than the present one.

Michael Heckman, county superintendent of schools, has yet to be interviewed by the committee. He has requested funds to hire a part-time secretary and for office equipment for her.

The committee reported the former assistant superintendent of schools did some typing but the present assistant, Thomas Coffey, does not type. A bit of political sentiment surfaced following this disclosure. Donald F. Burke, District 3, a Democrat, suggested the office probably needs another employee to do typing, but Herbert Henning, District 3, chairman of the Republican Central Committee, retorted, "Heckman knew Coffey couldn't type when he hired him." Heckman is a Democrat. The consensus was not to give Heckman what he requested.

Robert Roiland, administrator of the county nursing home, submitted budgeted expenditures of $593,425 for the next year and committee members concluded his projection of utility costs was too low and the amount was raised $1,900, bringing the total to $595,325.

Estimated income at the nursing home for the next 12 months is $571,000. The budget reflects a deficit from nursing home operations of about $24,000. The expenditure estimate does not include $80,000 which is the annual mortgage payment for the facility. The expenses expected are about $40,000 higher than projected for the present year.

Roiland told the committee the only raises he has discussed with the nursing home employees is a 1 per cent merit increase. He said he assumed any general raise given other county employees would apply to those at the nursing home. The home has about 85 employees with from 30 to 35 being part-time workers, according to Roiland.

He reported at present there are about 1½ employees to each two residents. Roiland also revealed the statewide average for county nursing homes is three-fourths of the total budget will be payrolls and that the local home maintains that percentage.

Last year at budget time the committee had its hardest time in confrontation with Joseph Klueppel, former administrator of the nursing home. The committee was of the opinion costs had risen too much at the facility and held several meetings to determine what should be the proper budgeted expenses. The finally approved expenditure budget last year was $608,618. Estimated costs for the present year fall under the appropriated amount by about $50,000.

The most strenuous struggle for the committee this year promises to be with the sheriff.

James P. Green, District 4, recalled the late John Quest, who was Nehring's predecessor, in January of 1973 had 15 full-time employees in his department and then asked the County Board for two more.

Today the department has 23 full-time deputies, including jailers.

The two extra personnel Quest got more than two years ago brought his employee total to 17, which is six less than are currently on Nehring's payroll. The sheriff maintains he has added only four individuals to his staff since taking over, noting he has applied for two more men to be recruited through the state-federal manpower program whose salaries will not be paid by the county for the first year.

Green also pointed out the budget for the sheriff's office in 1973 was $154,000 and next the request is about $400,000, commenting "That's too much of an in-

Napoleon, unloved emperor

By HENRY J. TAYLOR
ABACCIO, Corsica— Napoleon Bonaparte was born here Aug. 15, 1769, this Corsican adventurer whose genius we admire but whose despotism we abhor.
 It was shortly after the cession of Corsica to France by the Genoese and you are surprised to see the opulence of the birthplace house—a large, four-story, stately residence.
 Even the grown-up Napoleon was absurdly short. He had the cold gray eyes of an eagle, the hairdo of a spaniel; his hair cut close—"le petit tondu," they called him—and he inspired devotion in few, terror in most, love in none.
 Said Bonaparte to Françoise-Rene de Chateaubriand: "I have made courtiers. I have never pretended to make friends."
 At 28, Napoleon was General of the Army of Italy. Soon his thunder rolled down the shores of Europe. Ultimately he took charge of Europe's destinies for 15 years. But he often blundered—as in his invasion of Egypt.
 One reason Napoleon invaded Egypt was to replace the American colonies he saw being lost. But had Admiral Horatio Nelson caught Napoleon during their Mediterranean game of blind man's buff, General Bonaparte would never have been Firs Consul, never Emperor, there would be no Arc de Triomphe in Paris, no Trafalgar Square in London; neither Moscow nor Washington would have been burned.

 Nelson suffered throughout his life from seasickness. So did Napoleon. But a year later (Aug. 1, 1789) Nelson, a brilliant man of lightning thought, completely destroyed Napoleon's squadron in Abu Qir Bay off Alexandria.
 Napoleon, often dressed in Moslem clothes to help conquer the hatred of the Moslem sheiks, was in Egypt only 14 months. Then, after Nelson's Abu Qir victory and when attrition overtook his army in the Sahara sands, he deserted his troops—exactly as in Russia.
 Vanishing like a pricked balloon, Napoleon placed Gen. Jean-Baptiste Kleber in command. Then when Gen. Kleber's body accompanied the French troops back to France, Napoleon ordered the body detained at the prison fortress on the Isle of If, opposite Marseilles. It was left there until Napoleon's downfall.
 On Dec. 2, 1804, Napoleon crowned himself in Notre Dame with the confused title of "Emperor of the French Republic." And when he saw a vacant throne, he put a relative on it. When he saw a relative, he made a throne vacant.

 After Napoleon's Russian disaster he was continually outflanked by the expanding coalition against him. Finally cornered by vastly inferior generals, Bonaparte was exiled to Elba. However, he reinvented Europe and precisely 111 days later fought the Battle of Waterloo.
 Napoleon and Wellington were both 46. A large bronze lion atop a huge earthen pyramid growls menacingly at neighboring France. Said visiting Marshal Petin: "Yes, the snarling jaws toward France and the proper end toward England." But Napoleon had already been consumed in the immense conflagration of his useless conquests.
 On Oct. 13, 1815, Napoleon disembarked in Saint Helena. He remained there nearly six years; he had needed less time to conquer continental Europe. He had the world at his feet and all he got out of it was an island prison for himself.
 Death came at Saint Helena at 5:49 p.m. May 5, 1821, although it took nearly two months for the news to reach Europe. An eight-doctor postmortem confirmed the cause as a massive stomach cancer. His mind wandering, his face marred by a red nose that shone like Chinese lacquer, no loved one near, Napoleon murmured "Head of the army" in his last words.
 His body was dressed in his favorite uniform, Chasseurs de la Garde, covered by the cloak he wore at Marengo, Napoleon was buried in a spring-side spot between two weeping willows. Only "Here lies" was on the stone. No name.
 It was 19 years before his body was returned to France by King Louis Philippe, who was soon overthrown.
 Had it really been incapacity that did in this Corsican adventurer? You might as well say that a person succumbing to typhus died of incapacity. Napoleon succumbed to himself.

Guest Editorial Good terrorists are dead terrorists

(Reprinted from the Manchester (N.H.) Union Leader)
 In the opinion of this newspaper, the government of Spain did exactly the right thing in executing the terrorists. This is the only way you eventually stop terrorism—by making it very clear to these violent people that terrorism doesn't pay and that the penalty is death.
 The uproar by various governments and even by some church elements in Europe against execution of the terrorists seems insane. It can, however, be very easily explained by the fact that the radical and Communist elements in these countries are so powerful today that they can influence their governments to protest the executions of the terrorists, insane as such protests would seem to be.

 What has happened, the type of worldwide reaction against execution of the terrorists in Spain, gives an excellent indication of just how strong the revolutionary elements are in Europe today. It should be a warning to the United States.
 Of course, had the terrorists who so brutally and without cause murdered the Jewish athletes at the Olympic Games in Germany some years ago been executed immediately after being tried and found guilty, the other Arab terrorists would not have been able to seize a plane and, under the threat of executing its passengers, force the German government to free the first group of terrorists.

 It should be quite obvious to any logical person that the only good terrorist is a dead terrorist. The Franco government in Spain did exactly the right thing in executing these terrorists who had shown no mercy to their victims. It would be illogical to show mercy in return.

Terrorists, wherever they can be found in the world, including inside the United States, when captured and convicted in the courts, should be executed immediately.

Respect right to life

Every day the papers announce another attack against human life. Assassination attempts against the president, murders, and hit-and-run incidents all point out a growing disregard for the sanctity of life.
 To focus attention on the need to regard the inalienable right to life, the governor of Illinois, Dan Walker, and Mayor William Naylor of Dixon each issued proclamations endorsing the week of Sept. 29 through Oct. 5 as Respect Life Week. This week was intended to be a week of prayer and study concerning the sanctity of all human life.
 To quote from Governor Walker's proclamation, "Living perhaps two thousand years before the Christian era, the much afflicted Job believed, 'All that a man has he will give for his life.'"
 There fore we hope all citizens reaffirmed their belief in the dignity of man and joined in the observance of Respect Life Week.

Indicted innocent until proven guilty

In response to a comment in the "Voice of the People" may I say as a Lee County voter that it is my understanding that several Democrats have been indicted for obtaining absentee ballots for voters who were not sure they would be out of town on election day and on several counts of the absentee voters voting in their presence.

 The three Democrats indicted must be presumed to be innocent until they have had their day in court where they will have the opportunity for the first time to face and cross examine their accusers.
 The manner in which this investigation was initiated and pursued through the better part of a year and four sessions of the Grand Jury by two "crack" investigators from the Attorney General's office together with the reported statement at a Republican Party meeting days before the election to "get" Jim Burke, the pleas to the courts to stop the harassment of a 16-year-old boy, the innuendos in the newspapers about host voting are all reminiscent of Richard Nixon's egomaniacal use of governmental agencies to destroy political opposition.

Strikes hurt students

The teachers at DHS were recently issued a copy of an editorial which appeared in one of the Chicago papers. This editorial concerned itself with teachers' strikes. It said that it was not wrong for teachers to strike and that the students who miss school on account of the strike are not affected in any way. It also said that it is the parents' job to teach their child how to read and write before he starts school. Also it mentioned that the teachers cannot give the child a "Whack along side the head" when he misbehaves. Mentioned also was the fact that a teacher finds it tough to handle a troublemaking student "when there are 30 more like him in the class."

 It is my opinion that this editorial is complete junk. Strikes do hurt the students. The days missed by students because of a strike are made up during their vacations. When a child goes to school nine months out of the year he should not be deprived of any of his vacations.
 It should not be a parent's job to teach their child to read and write before he goes to school. That is what teachers are for. It would be tough work for a parent to teach their 5- or 6-year-old to read and write and do arithmetic. The father of the family is busy working while the mother is busy keeping the house in order and keeping an eye on her child. What I'm saying is when would parents find time to teach their children these things?
 Just because there is one troublemaker in the room does not mean all the children in the room are like that. If a teacher finds it difficult to control one of these problem students then all that teacher has to do is talk to the parents. If the situation prevails then that teacher should see to it that the student gets help (counseling).
 I hope that the DHS teachers did not take that editorial seriously. The editorial was a bit out of line and exaggerated quite a bit.
 Sincerely,
 Steve Hey

Struggle for press freedom

You may have—at one time or another—been so angered by a government official or action that you penned a letter to the editor of your newspaper.

In 1798, U.S. Rep. Matthew Lyon, a former Green Mountain Boy from the Revolutionary War, did just that. He wrote a letter to an editor charging Federalist President John Adams with "ridiculous pomp, foolish adulation, and selfish avarice." For that, Lyon was imprisoned and given a stiff fine. He had violated the curious Alien and Sedition Acts enacted around the turn of the century.

Lyon was one of many men who suffered along the road to the development of the free press. There was also Benjamin Harris, a Briton who was pilloried in front of his printing shop and later forced to leave Great Britain for criticizing the King. After he arrived in America, he was again censured for the political criticism he published in the first colonial newspaper and was eventually reduced to peddling quack medicines. And there was James Franklin who had to write under the name of his younger brother Benjamin, when he was forbidden to write after criticizing government and church officials. Many of the fascinating people who helped to lay the foundations for today's free press are being presented to area students in an educational Bicentennial filmstrip provided by the Dixon Evening Telegraph for 11 schools. The filmstrip was mailed to school recently to allow teachers to use it during Newspaper Week, Oct. 5-11.

The filmstrip is part of our newspaper's current events program for participating area schools. The program is designed to stimulate student interest in the news and increase newspaper reading. It has several parts. Each week, participating schools receive a filmstrip of news pictures which the teacher uses to lead class discussion of news of the preceding week. Each school also receives a monthly "News In-Depth" filmstrip devoted to a single topic. This month's "News In-Depth" filmstrip is entitled, "Press Freedom, Yesterday & Today."

"Press Freedom, Yesterday & Today" traces the development of the free press from its crudest beginnings in Great Britain. William Caxton introduced the printing press in Great Britain in 1476, but 150 years elapsed before the first newspapers were printed there. That's because the British kings feared the press, thinking it could only foster discontent and sedition. So, they made printing the exclusive right of the Crown.

The filmstrip reveals how licensing and strict restrictions of the press in Britain eventually broke down. It traces the introduction and development of the press in British America, where the press played an important role in fostering and maintaining a revolutionary spirit among colonists. It was the clever colonial editors who managed to have their account of the first battle of Lexington and Concord in London 11 days before their British counterparts. In fact, Gen. George Washington was so impressed with the potential power of the press, he made a personal plea for colonists to save rags and paper scraps to make paper for America's newspapers.

Students are also given interesting looks into some of the important eras of American journalism: They learn about the penny press and some of the men who were involved in the first real newspapers for the masses. They look into the unique problems that were created when reporters and editors first reported war—the Civil War—with the use of telegraphs. Students look at William Randolph Hearst and Joseph Pulitzer and how they made use of the "new journalism"—illustrations, regular news staffs, sports reporting, and other advancements, as well as sensationalism—to skyrocket their circulations. They see how these men helped to bring about the Spanish-American War at the same time they were promoting needed social reform in the U.S. Students also meet Edward Wyllis Scripps, one of journalism's great crusaders, who promoted social reform under the motto: "Whatever is, is wrong."

Today's free press is the result of many social, political and personal struggles. The filmstrip provided by The Telegraph provides students a chance to learn about those struggles that have given this newspaper the privilege and right to publish each day without restriction or fear.

25 YEARS AGO

A talk on fire prevention will be given at the weekly Lions Club meeting Tuesday at the Nachusa Hotel. A chief engineer of the Illinois Inspection Bureau, Chicago, will be the featured speaker.

Registration officials from all of Lee County will sit on a "school of instruction" in connection with their duties tomorrow, the last day to register in order to vote in the November election. The school will be conducted in the circuit court in the courthouse tonight at 7:30 p.m.

50 YEARS AGO

The Dixon Legion football team is putting on the finishing touches for the second game of their schedule which promises to be one of the hardest of the season, the annual meeting next Sunday with the Spring Valley Wild Cats.

It has been found that the "rose of Sharon" to which reference is made in the Old Testament was not a rose at all, but a tulip. There was no Hebrew word for it, researchers have shown, so it came down through various translations under an erroneous name. Archeological discoveries have borne out this diagnosis.

And even on the 7th day they don't rest.

Since January 1975, these people have been working 7 days a week, on 3 shifts, to make lids for home canning jars.
 That's how hard we've been trying at Ball to meet the demand.
 Ball has increased production of replacement lids by 30% over last year because of the effort these people have given.

Even so, some people haven't been able to buy enough lids.

If you have any extra lids, won't you please share them with your neighbor.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE CASE E-687: Darleen D., aged 45, recently celebrated her silver wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Crane and I were invited to the gala festivities.
"Dr. Crane," she later confessed, "I would have been a soured divorcee if it hadn't been for your newspaper column!"

"For by our fifth wedding day, we were feuding and fighting all the time."

"So I decided divorce would be superior to rearing our three little children in such a bad home atmosphere."

"But our clergyman insisted that I read your 'Worry Clinic' faithfully for three months, before I made any rash move."

"Meanwhile, he gave me several of your newspaper booklets, including the 'Tests for Husbands and Wives,' plus that crucial one entitled 'Sex Problems in Marriage.'"

"Well, I soon began to realize how I had been rationing my husband to my own more limited appetite for what you call 'erotic calories.'"

"So I decided to give your system a month's test, though I am free to admit I didn't think it would change our home into a happy one."

"But it did!
"And I believe almost all divorces could be stopped if the wives would honestly accept your frequent advice about serving more enticing boudoir cheeseecake."

"My daughter got married three years ago, but I certainly indoctrinated her properly, so they are ideally happy and I am sure will always be so."

Print University
Be grateful that hundreds of American newspapers have thus prevented divorce via this "Print Marriage Clinic."

They have meanwhile saved hundreds of thousands of innocent children from the traumatic emotional insecurity of being shuttled back and forth for visitation rights between divorced parents!

Alas, high schools and colleges ignored the bedroom in their very limited treatment of courses titled "Preparation for Marriage."

Instead, they focussed on the cookstove and the nursery, plus sewing, and even landscaping, as well as interior decorating!

But glossed over the boudoir!

Yet most divorces start in the bedroom!

When I made that statement originally, several newspapers cancelled this "Worry Clinic," saying:

"Dr. Crane is too frank for a FAMILY newspaper!"

Yet this "Worry Clinic" was the best insurance married couples could receive to AVOID divorce!

But when I continue to warn fat, stodgy wives about the danger of outside slender sirens, some of the culprits refuse to fight with fire but nag their mates into cancelling this column!

In the past year, for example,
I have lost three newspapers because the wives of the editors or publishers refused to diet and serve more enticing boudoir cheeseecake, but demanded this column be dropped.

"Dr. Crane," you may ask,
"how do you know those wives were at the bottom of such cancellations of the 'Worry Clinic?'"

Because there are usually several friendly journalists on every newspaper who relay such inside facts to us columnists, just as Jack Anderson keeps alerted, too.

To gloss over such cancellations, the publishers may recite the inane rationalization that "Dr. Crane repeats himself."

Wives, to avoid Darleen's threatened divorce, send for my booklet "How to PRE-VENT Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Doctor Says:

Not opposed to jogging; just doing it wrong

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was surprised to read you do not recommend running as a suitable physical fitness exercise. I just read a recent book and the doctor who wrote it thinks running is the best way for people to condition themselves. He nearly poohpoohs anything slower than a mile and a half in 12 minutes, provided this is worked up to slowly and the individual is in good shape medically. Your advice is to walk or at most jog slowly, and it seems to me that this flies in the face of this book.

I'm 33 years old, and, like most people, I'm too fat, too lazy, smoke too much. However, I've followed the program in this book with pretty good success except for those occasions (which have been many) when I have tried to do too much or the weather suddenly turned hot and humid, after which I'd feel tired for three or four days from only one running session.

I'd like to know if you think the program in this book is dangerous.

DEAR READER — You have gotten the wrong impression if you think I am opposed to running and jogging. I am only opposed to doing it the wrong way.
My column must deal with the entire spectrum of the public, and I never know what any one individual's health status is. I am not about to recommend an excessive exercise program without suitable controls.

The book you mention did just that in an earlier edition and several deaths resulted from people exercising the wrong way. And some of them were in relatively young men. If the author had been experienced in heart disease he might have written his first edition differ-ently.

What do I mean by jogging or running safely? First, no one should go out and see how far they can go in 12 minutes to test his level of fitness. I believe this mistake was removed in the most recent edition. A lot of sedentary office types who have not run a block in years and are overweight can get into serious trouble with such a procedure.

Second, start a walking program FIRST and gradually build up to the jogging level.

Third, if you are qualified to begin a jogging program never push the clock. Speed is not nearly as important as developing endurance. Recent studies from the U.S. Air Force Academy published in the Journal of the American Medical Assn. prove that a person uses about the same amount of calories in slowly jogging a given distance as in rapidly jogging. It is the distance that counts.

I don't believe jogging will seriously injure anyone who follows sensible rules. Some people do drop dead exercising and other people die in bed from heart attacks, unrelated to exercise.

You can get as much benefit for your heart and circulation by jogging a longer distance slower and not pushing yourself to peak exertion. Marathon running is intended to train you to run a long distance, not to win a 100-yard dash. A good rule is never jog so fast that you can't still talk while you are doing it. That way you won't overload the heart suddenly without knowing it and get into serious trouble during or perhaps minutes or hours after the jog is over.

Make-up gold mine Cosmetics geared to black skin

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — The Polished Ambers is here. No, it's not a singing group from the fifties. It's Revlon's new make-up collection geared to the black woman, who is part of a market estimated at eight million and accounting for roughly $500 million in retail sales.

Tempted by these fresh, green numbers cosmetic companies which traditionally catered to the white woman are dishing up shades of mocha, mahogany and toasted almond.

California-based Max Factor, for example, is planning to introduce the Rich Deep Shades into its Gemine line in December and the Beautiful Bronzes as part of its moderately-priced UltraLucent line in January.

Even Avon is knocking on doors with a Shades of Beauty collection.

Until fairly recently, the black woman whose skin was too dark for cosmetics designed for Caucasian coloring was out of luck.

"Black women were not wearing cosmetics until a few years ago because there were no products for them," says Barbara Walden, a black dancer and actress who heads Barbara Walden Cosmetics in Los Angeles. "I have very sensitive skin and my friends kept approaching me for the cosmetics I'd had made up for myself."

"I thought, can you imagine what I can make if I sell them?" So Barbara Walden Cosmetics went into operation in 1968, and now the line, which is directed to white women as well, is carried in 35 leading department stores (and many branches) across the country.

Flori Roberts, Inc., a white-owned, black-oriented company, claims to have pioneered the business in department stores 10 years ago. "We started as a small company in New Jersey," says Dorothy Beil, public relations director, "and growth has been phenomenal. We're represented in more than 500 outlets in the country."

Possibly the newest black company is Fashion Fair Cosmetics in Chicago, owned by John H. Johnson, the publisher of Ebony and Jet hair — than a white or Oriental woman) which protects her from early wrinkling, also serves to clog pores and create blemishes. So cleansing is important. And moisturizing. "Even oily skin needs moisturizing," Barbara Walden says, "because oil glands are located well beneath the skin and the outer layers, even if oily, must be kept from drying out."

Water-base foundations tend to streak on oily skin, she explains, "because oil and water don't mix, so foundations must be formulated with this in mind."

And, although black women come "in all shades, the under-tones are primarily orange and that must be reflected in foundations, blushers (to highlight cheekbones) and powders."

"My chemist and I thought we had reached every tone of black skin until we came across a woman who was so dark we couldn't make her up," Miss Walden continues. "So we worked with her and found she had a lot of blue in her skin. We brought out the blue tones and when she was made up, she looked like black velvet."

Bernadette Carey of Fashion Fair says, "A woman with a dark skin needs a very intense color for it to show up. We've created colors whose intensity can be controlled by the way they're applied — Smoky shadows, deep, clear reds and burnished shades."

Lips, too, are often a problem. For each woman one lip may be lighter, or pinker, than the other and, in some cases, both lips will be darker than the rest of the complexion. Without a lip lightener or darker to even the color, lipsticks and glosses will appear blotchy.

Now that she's being courted by the beauty business, the black customer may eventually face the question white women have had to deal with for years: why is this lipstick, or eye shadow, or whatever, different from every other? But for now, this customer is nibbling at once forbidden pastries, and the richness of the diet is probably welcome and long overdue.

Girls sexually assaulted by fathers should tell mothers or police

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the mother whose husband can't stay out of the bathroom when his teen-age daughters are showering or bathing really got to me. I owe it to every teen-age girl in the world to tell my story.

That mother said her 14-year-old didn't seem to mind because she never complained. Well, may be she has been threatened into silence—like I was.

You should have told Mom to get her crazy, sick husband out of the house before one or both of her daughters got raped.

Being sexually attacked by a stranger is bad enough, but when it's your own father it creates horrible, twisted feelings that hang in your head night and day. No one can imagine what an effect such an act can have on a young girl.

I was 12 when it happened to me. Now at 19, even after all the counseling, I still get sick to my stomach when a decent boy wants to hold my hand. I keep wondering if I'll ever be able to have a normal sex life.

If I were in that mother's place I'd order the father out of the house immediately and insist that he get psychiatric treatment. He could come back if and when the doctor said he was well. No man will ever jeopardize the children I hope to have someday.—Been Through It

Dear B.T.I.: So have hundreds of others, dear. I was chilled by the number of letters I received from young girls who wrote to say they had been sexually assaulted by their fathers.

Once again, I urge every girl who experiences such a trauma to tell her mother at once. If—and this may be hard to believe—your mother refuses to believe you, or will do nothing to protect you, call the police at once and let the law step in.

Dear Ann Landers: We hear a lot about people who can't seem to get anyplace on time. What about those who come early to dinner?

I love this couple dearly but they always louse me up by showing up at least 30 minutes ahead of time. Every hostess needs those 30 minutes to do her last-minute chores before guests arrive.

I'd appreciate any word of advice you can offer. This has been going on for at least three years and—I Have Had It With The Early Birds

Dear Had It: You write rather well so I assume you can also speak. The next time you invite the Early Birds for dinner tell Mrs. E. B. you'd appreciate it if they wouldn't arrive before the appointed hour because you need the extra time to get things ready.

If after that little speech, they STILL arrive early, let 'em lean on the bell awhile.

Dear Ann Landers: May I offer a few words to the elderly? Stop wasting precious time worrying about old age. It's part of life. Even children grow older every day. I have seen 68 summers but I refuse to remember the winters.

The secret of a happy life is to be useful. Get a part-time job. Develop a hobby. Do volunteer work in a hospital, nursing home or a place that helps delinquent or handicapped children.

Age represents knowledge and experience. The world needs you. Shut the door on uselessness and self-pity. When you help others you best serve yourself. Enjoy life. It's beautiful.—Betty

Dear Betty: Your message has Wow-Power. Thanks for a piece of solid philosophy.

Keep food wastes to minimum

How much of the food taken into a home ends up in the garbage can, poured down the drain or put through the garbage disposal? Without careful management, thrown-out food can account for many wasted family food dollars, according to Irene Downey, University of Illinois Extension food and nutrition specialist.

A study of household food waste in Tucson, Ariz., in 1973 and 1974 showed that an average household wasted $80 to $100 worth of food each year. Edible food waste in the garbage cans of about 300 households was analyzed in the study. This excluded waste disposed of by other means such as fed into the garbage disposal, poured down the sink drain, dumped on the compost pile, or fed to pets.

Researchers defined "edible wastes" as plate scrapings, as well as "straight waste," such as throwing out stale bread. Excluded from "edible waste" were such items as banana peels, egg shells, and bones.

In this study, the foods which contributed most to edible waste were beef and other meats, cheese, fresh vegetables and fruits, take-out meals, bread and pastry.

Results of the study show that food waste can be a drain not only on the family food budget, but also on the national use of resources, Ms. Downey concludes.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

If today's hand were played in the national charity duplicate the chances are that there would be several thousand bidding sequences. Some pairs would just reach game. Others would reach six notrump, down one after a spade lead. Some would play in six diamonds (also down one).

The few who would be in six clubs would also be likely to fall one short, although there is a perfect safety play available.

Playing in six clubs, South wins the spade lead, draws trumps, cashes three hearts in order to get rid of his small spade, ruffs dummy's last spade and since he is in his own hand proceeds to lead a low diamond and to play dummy's eight spot. East wins and is end-played.

Suppose West held the four diamonds. If they included just two honors West would win and be forced to give South a ruff and discard. If West held all three honors and did not play one that eight spot would have won the trick. If he played one, South would win with dummy's king, lead back the eight; duck and let West be end-played.

Suppose diamonds were 3-2. Then there would be only one diamond loser and everyone would make the slam.

New electrical billing

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Electric companies trying to encourage conservation and ease the brunt of rate increases are experimenting with new ways of computing customers' bills. They are charging more for power in peak demand periods and are offering minimum service at a minimum price for low-income consumers.

An Associated Press spot check also showed some officials are urging an "energy stamp" program for the poor, similar to the federal food stamp project. Others advocate changing the traditional "the more you use, the less you pay" rate schedules.

The Edison Electric Institute, a trade group, said residential customers paid an average of 16.4 per cent more for electricity in 1974 than they did in 1973. At the same time, the average amount of electricity used by residential customers dropped about 2 per cent.

The AP survey found that the most popular type of program to cut costs is peak-demand pricing, in use in about a dozen states.

The Florida Public Service Commission recently approved a one-year test plan for Florida Power Corp. whereby 200 residential customers who volunteer for the program will be charged 1.7 cents per kilowatt hour for electricity consumed during nonpeak hours and 7.9 cents per kilowatt hour the rest of the time. The present residential rate is about 4 cents per kilowatt hour.

Peak hours under the plan are 1 to 9 p.m. from April to October and 7 to 11 a.m. and 5 to 9 p.m. the rest of the year. Company officials estimate that customers who take advantage of the new system, doing heavy electric-consuming chores like laundry in off hours, can cut bills by about one-third.

Commonwealth Edison Co. and the Illinois Commerce Commission are conducting a $500,000 peak-demand program that began in June with the installation of special meters in 1,000 homes in northern Illinois.

Commission staff members are collecting information on normal electricity usage and, when the new billing system begins next summer, will check consumption figures to see if there is any saving.

The California Public Utilities Commission, in approving a rate increase requested by Pacific Gas & Electric Co., also okayed a changed system of billing. Residential customers who use a minimum amount of electricity will get a cut in their bills and average users will pay only a small increase, leaving large industrial users to bear the brunt of the rate hike.

The New York State Public Service Commission is considering a proposal for a "lifeline" billing system giving low-income families a below-cost rate. The program would be subsidized by increasing other residential rates.

The Michigan Public Service Commission is looking at an energy voucher program to subsidize part or all utility rate increases since 1973 for low-income customers.

People in the news

NEW YORK (AP) — Diana Nyad swam 28 miles through the murky waters around Manhattan Island and then fell into a hot shower.

The 25-year-old New York University graduate made the swim Monday in 8 hours and 2 minutes, 54 minutes under the record set in 1927 by Byron Summers. It was a sunny day, with temperatures in the 70s. Water temperatures were 65 degrees.

Miss Nyad attempted the swim last month but stopped after 6 hours and 25 minutes because of cold, rainy weather.

MIDDLESEX, Vt. (AP) — Musician Skitch Henderson escaped uninjured when his car collided with a motorcycle near this central Vermont community.

Police said the bandleader's auto collided with a motorcycle at the intersection of U.S. 2 and Vermont 100B Monday.

The cyclist, Steven Juris, 34, of Winoski, suffered a broken arm and was taken to the Central Vermont Hospital.

The 55-year-old Henderson of New York City has a summer home in Sugarbush Valley.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A state historical marker at the site of Malcolm X's childhood home will be dedicated Sunday by a local group which has spent nearly a year raising funds.

The Vincent Court Apartments now stand in the area where Malcolm X's family owned property for about 25 years.

"Malcolm X, born Malcolm Little in Omaha, Neb., in 1925, lived on this site in the 1930s," reads the marker.

Bonnie Bronder, who started the marker committee, described Malcolm X as a fiery orator who made whites look at injustices towards blacks and helped blacks gain hope and self-respect.

TRIED POT— Jack Ford, son of the President, smokes a cigarette during an interview in Portland, Ore. During the interview he said that he has smoked marijuana and considers it no more harmful than beer or wine. (AP Wirephoto)

Hunters advised to get selves in shape

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer
CENTRALIA, Ill. (AP) — Rifles and other gear at the ready, many hunters are under the mistaken belief they're prepared for the about-to-open winter season, say state conservation officials.

But they've overlooked the most important piece of equipment — themselves.

Would George Blanda put his toe to a football without being in shape? What makes you think you can take the field without some tuning up. Are you better than old George?

First off, the Illinois Department of Conservation recommends, see your doctor. Let him have a listen at the ticker to make sure it's running smoothly. According to the statisticians, more hunters die of heart attacks than from accidental shootings.

Then take a walk. "To start with an easy walk," says department spokesman Gary Thomas, "Two times around the block or something like that. Something that's not tiring, to build your wind up."

"Take your dog with you and do it in a terrain similar to what you're going to be hunting after you've gotten your wind back. The dog can use the exercise too. That dog is as important as anything."

"The most beautiful time to be walking is right now anyhow. Wear your hunting boots, especially if they are new," he said. "If you walk in tennis shoes it isn't quite the same."

It might be a good idea, too, he said, if you carried something about the same weight as your weapon.

If you live close to where you plan to hunt this might be an opportunity to do some scouting. And once you've gotten a little steam up you might carry a rifle along for some impromptu squirrel hunting.

You can add to the regimen with some jogging or bicycling as you begin to get in shape. If you opt for jogging try to find some place that isn't paved. Your joints won't complain as much.

And some of the exercises you learned at boot camp wouldn't hurt anything. A few deep-knee bends, sit-ups, push-ups, jumping jacks and toe-touchers will give muscles some tone. But do them daily or they won't be good for much more than aches and pains.

Finance Committee faces demanding task on budget crease. It's more law enforcement than we can pay for."

During discussions Friday with Nehring, he informed committee members state law now permits a separate levy for the sheriff's department, if approved by a voter referendum.

Committee members expressed belief a referendum would not pass but Nehring contended people are concerned enough about law enforcement they would vote the extra taxes to support his department.

Members Burke, Green and Henning invited the sheriff to ask the County Board to approve holding a referendum. The sheriff announced he would do just that.

Nehring bitterly complained the committee was making deeper cuts in his budget than for other departments. "I have worked hard to build up this department and I am proud of the protection we are giving the people of this county and I won't reduce this protection," challenged the sheriff.

The sheriff argued the committee should not make cuts in his budget also for the reason his department brings a great deal of money into the fund through fines which result from arrests made by his deputies. He also pointed out contracts with Ashton and Amboy bring in $33,000 per year.

At this point Dean Hamilton, certified public accountant, did some figuring and declared the county is losing money on the contracts with the two villages.

Green suggested the sheriff's spending request was for the protection of only about half of the population of the county. But Nehring shot back, "I have jurisdiction in any part of the county and lots of people in Dixon call me because they do not want to call the city police."

Burke persisted, calling attention to the fact city taxpayers support the city police department and also pay taxes to fund the sheriff's department.

This brought an outcry from the sheriff, "Let me tell you, we are all that stands between the people and the animals out there, and people need all the protection they can get and I'm not going to tell them they are going to get less protection from us. You tell them."

Green opined "The only person concerned with adequate police protection is one who was robbed and your protection didn't help him. The other people are not really concerned. I, for one, do not want too much police protection."

Recently Nehring arrested some drug offenders and confiscated the auto vans which the violators were using.

The sheriff told the committee he wanted to convert one of the vans into a crime lab for his department.

Earlier the nursing home administrator had advised the committee of the need for a station wagon. Committee members asked Roiland if he could use an auto van in place of a station wagon and he said that would be satisfactory.

When the committee informed Nehring they had considered giving a confiscated van to the nursing home, the sheriff reacted vociferously. "I have filed papers to confiscate those vans stating they are to be used for law enforcement. I want to keep one and to sell the other."

"We looked for a van for a long time and now that we have one I am not in favor of giving it up."

"Can you use the van if we don't give you funds to equip it?" queried Burke.

Green said he disapproved of the philosophy of equipping the department through the back door by confiscating individuals' property.

The sheriff asserted, "I think it's all right. I can tell you it really helps in fighting the drug traffic."

At the conclusion of the interchange between the committee and the sheriff, members warned him there might be more cuts coming Friday when the group meets again.

A committee member since Friday has told this reporter he believes Nehring is mounting a campaign with other board members to override the committee's decisions about his budget.

Amboy Council adopts sewer bond ordinance

AMBOY— The members of the city council adopted a bond ordinance and heard a detailed report on the plans for the improvement of the city sewage treatment facility at the regular session held in the city hall Tuesday night.

The bond ordinance provides for the city to issue $125,000 in coupon bonds beginning Dec. 1, 1975 and running for 10-year period. The bond issue was approved at a recent referendum and will be used to finance the city's share of the sewage facility improvement.

Bonds will be in $1,000 denominations and will be paid off on Dec. 1 of each year as follows: In years 1976 through 1980 will be $3,000 per year; in 1981 $5,000, in 1982 through 1986 $20,000 per year and in 1987 $5,000.

Interest will be at six per cent per annum and will be paid semi-annually on Dec. 1 and June 1.

Howard Wellman, engineer for Willett Hofmann and Associates, Dixon, was present to discuss the progress of the plans for the updating of the sewage treatment facility to meet Environmental Protection Agency requirements. He displayed maps and drawings explaining how ponds two and three will be used for the installation of chlorination and aeration equipment which will provide adequate treatment for present industries and population up to 7,800 persons. Pond one will be held in reserve and will be used in the event of population growth in the area and it can be equipped with additional systems to accommodate up to 20,000 population.

It's Fire Prevention Week

Practice EDITH and avert a tragedy

(Editor's Note: The following story is fictional. But it and scenes like it are repeated all too frequently. It is written to call attention that this is Fire Prevention Week.)

By CONNI DETTMAN

Little Bobby was 3 years old when a fire swept through the family home. The blaze started in the living room where a smoldering cigarette had fallen from an ash tray onto the floor where old newspapers were stacked. The fire started out small but it grew until Bobby's parents noticed smoke coming from under the living room door. Bobby's parents and his twin sisters all got out of the house but minutes later they realized Bobby was still in his room.

Bobby would have been 10 years old today if his parents would have taught their children about EDITH (exit drills in the home). Little Bobby decided he wanted his teddy bear and looked everywhere in his room to find it. He toddled to the stairway, coughed a little and went back to his smoke filled bedroom where he looked for his teddy bear again. By the time little Bobby found his teddy bear, the fire had spread up the stairway and he could not get down.

Little Bobby's cries could not be heard over the sound of the fire equipment. Outside his home his mother had just discovered her little Bobby was missing and frantically searched the yard. When she realized where he was, she ran to the house but a fire fighter held her back.

Other fire fighters immediately set up a ladder at Bobby's bedroom window, entered the house and tried to find the little boy. Little Bobby was found clutching his teddy bear in the hallway. He was quickly carried out the window and down the ladder while emergency medical assistance was given. Death was attributed to burns and smoke inhalation.

Little Bobby could be celebrating today, if his parents and family had practiced EDITH (exit drills in the home).

"Why should we practice? We won't have a fire at our house," Bobby's parents had said. His parents realized too late that fires don't always happen to the other person. Planning and practice might have saved Bobby's life. Operation EDITH is held during Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 5-11 and is being sponsored by local industries and the Dixon Fire Department. EDITH has been sponsored by the Dixon Fire Department in the past four years and has won approval of the Jaycees.

Each year the EDITH drills are held on the anniversary date of the great Chicago Fire, Oct. 9. Dixon, Sterling, Rock Falls, Rochelle and Franklin Grove have all made plans to emphasize EDITH and are asking people to set aside time to plan and prepare a drill for the practice run at 5:55 p.m. Thursday. More than just the time it takes to practice the drill must be taken by each family to ensure proper speed and safety for the drills. EDITH takes planning. Two exits should be mapped from each room especially the bedroom. Eight of ten fires take place at night when people are asleep. The exits, once planned, should be discussed with every member of the family. Other precautions in case of fire should also be discussed. Parents should explain to their children the importance of keeping their bedroom doors closed at night to give them extra time to escape if the fire breaks out in the bedroom hallway. Children should be taught to feel the door for heat and if the door is hot, they should not open it because the fire could be right outside the door. If doors and windows are left open, a draft could ventilate the fire and pull it through the room. Instead of the door, children should exit through the window.

Ladders, metal or wooden, should be left where they can easily be gotten to rescue persons from the second story windows. Children should be taught how to raise and lower the ladders and how to safely evacuate persons from the second story. Neighbors should also be told the location of ladders in case the family can't get out of their home.

For Bobby's family, a prearranged meeting place where the children should have stayed together should have been established. Once outside, mom or dad should count noses to make sure everyone got out. Older brothers and sisters should be put in charge of watching the little ones.

Stop; think of all the people in Dixon. Then imagine if something happened to kill each city resident. This would be the number of people killed each year by fires, most of which might have been saved with a little planning for safe fire exit routes. These lives could have been saved if people had given a little time to fire prevention and programs such as Operation EDITH.

Preparation plays an important part in EDITH. Family members should sit down together and plan exit routes for every room in the house. Parents should teach their children how to report a fire and what to do if they are home alone and fire breaks out.

Operation EDITH saves lives. Little Bobby could be celebrating his birthday today if his parents had paid attention to EDITH and other children just like Bobby might also be alive today if parents knew about EDITH.

If the life of only one child is saved, time, planning and practice of exit drills in the home were not wasted.

Keys to the Revolution

In the year 1775 the first shot of the American Revolution was heard in Massachusetts, the first call for American independence was written in North Carolina, and the first notes from an American-made piano were heard in Pennsylvania. That year John Behrent of Philadelphia manufactured the first piano to be made in America. This feat didn't create much of a stir, since the few colonists who needed pianos imported them from England. Ten years after Behrent built his instrument, piano factories finally were established in New York and Philadelphia. A decade later these two cities had become centers for the growing American piano industry.

DO YOU KNOW — Who invented the upright piano?

West Brooklyn Board hires engineering firm

WEST BROOKLYN—A resolution to employ Driver and Simmons, consulting engineers for a water main project in the village, was adopted Tuesday night by the West Brooklyn Village Board.

Village Clerk Pat Jones and Village Treasurer Lynn O'Sadnick, were directed to meet with Tom Driver, a representative of the firm concerning talking with a bond consultant on ways to finance the project.

The board discussed prices for putting chlorine in the village's water supply. No action was taken on the issue.

In final action the board voted to make West Brooklyn a Bicentennial Village and to plan projects for the celebration. One Bicentennial project discussed by the board was the construction of a picnic shelter in the park. The board trustees and the village clerk were placed on the Bicentennial Commission.

The informant implicated Bennett when questioned on a series of burglaries which occurred in Lee County in Dec. 1972. One of the burglaries Bennett was accused of committing was at the Henry Didier home, rural Franklin Grove. Taken in the burglary were one .22 caliber rifle, one 16 gauge shotgun and two 12 gauge shotguns, various wrapped Christmas presents and 20 gallons of gas from a tank on the farm. The informant also told authorities the weapons were sold to a Mississippi man.

Bennett was arrested on the warrant in Rochelle by Rochelle Police and Lee County authorities. He was jailed in lieu of $5,000 bond and will appear in court today.

Laxton was nervous but performed well

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Gord Laxton was nervous when he found out he would start and a bit wobbly after his National Hockey League debut, but in between the rookie goalie performed like a seasoned veteran.

The 20-year-old Pittsburgh goalie turned aside 26 shots, including several close-in attacks under extreme pressure, leading the Penguins to a 4-2 victory over the Washington Capitals Tuesday night to launch the NHL's 59th season.

Following six more games tonight and three on Thursday, all but one of the league's 18 teams will have seen action. The Toronto Maple Leafs won't play their first game until Saturday.

Given a 2-0 lead on goals by Dave Burrows and Vic Hadfield, early in each of the first two periods, Laxton was working on a shutout until defenseman Greg Joly put a shot past him at 15:08 of the second period.

Another goal by Washington rookie Tony White, just 12 seconds before the second intermission, tied it 2-2. But instead of folding, Laxton stopped 11 shots in the third period and thwarted four minutes of power play thrusts.

A slap shot by defenseman Colin Campbell snapped the tie at 5:41 and Syl Apps tallied Pittsburgh's second power play goal at 18:36.

"He made some big saves," observed Coach Marc Boileau, who said he would decide within two weeks which two goalies the Penguins will carry. In addition to Laxton, veterans Gary Inness and Michel Plasse are on the roster.

Boileau said the performance did not guarantee that Laxton would be in the nets for Pittsburgh's home debut on Saturday against Washington. But he added that the indecision on the goalies didn't mean that he'd alternate the three, either.

Butch Roland ran 45 yards to score in the final quarter. LeBlanc hit Criss for 15 yards and the extra point pass was to Dennis Trotter. The Royal Palms defense scored twice with interceptions by Tim Wadsworth for a 45-yard return, while Roland picked off a 15-yard return.

Is it economically, politically feasible

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The question that arises immediately in connection with President Ford's proposed $28 billion tax cut is whether it is feasible, economically or politically.

Nearly three-quarters of budget expenditures are what has come to be termed uncontrollable. That is, because of laws and actions made in prior years, like it or not, the government is committed to spend those funds.

If, as the President said, spending seems headed toward $423 billion next year, a $28 billion cut would amount to a reduction of between 6 and 7 percent, not merely of the one-quarter of the budget under control, but of the total budget.

Whether such an accomplishment is possible, especially in a politically volatile election year, is debatable at best. Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., chairman of the House Budget Committee, immediately called it unrealistic.

What are these "uncontrollables" that leave the President and Congress so few options in changing the course of federal spending? The biggest by far are expenditures for Social Security and railroad retirement, accounting for roughly one-third.

Smaller in percentage, but so numerous as to underscore the point, are a basketful of other expenditures, including unemployment assistance, veterans benefits, Medicare and Medicaid, housing aid, revenue sharing.

Of growing importance is interest on the national debt, which amounted to "only" $10.3 billion as recently as fiscal 1967 but which had risen to $22 billion in fiscal 1975, the result of more borrowing and higher interest rates.

The President's hope that both taxes and government expenditures can be cut simultaneously is consistent with the economic and political philosophy he has espoused since he took office — and before.

In his view, a growing federal establishment threatens to drain away the prosperity and vitality of America, "as one big spending program after another has been piled on the federal pyramid."

The bureaucratic superstructure, he maintains, is "taking a larger share of your personal income and creating record budget deficits and inflation," while at the same time "trying to run too much of your daily life." This is a very basic dispute that underlies almost every political and economic argument in the country today, and it has long been so. It is in the sub-stratum of the American psyche, sometimes quiescent, sometimes boiling.

The President, it now seems, believes the underground rumblings must be quieted or the pyramid, like a volcano, might blow its head. It seems to be his hope that he can seal it off before that happens.

However, a look at some comparative statistics suggest the situation might not exist or be resolved at the federal level alone. The biggest percentage increases in government spending in recent years have been at city and state levels.

Part of this might be due to increases in revenue distribution, or aid from federal government receipts, but not entirely. The Tax Foundation, which describes itself as a nonpartisan, nonprofit research and educational organization, shows that in recent years per capita Federal expenditures have fallen slightly in percentage while state spending has tended higher.

In almost any statistical breakdown of governmental spending, whether at local, state or federal level, the fact that steps out of the number in bold relief is that debt is rising at all levels of government.

This suggests, of course, that Americans seem to be expecting more from their governments than they are willing or able to pay for. No problem seems too big to be overcome, but the expense seems to be.

Turning back the growing demand for governmental services will be difficult, politically and economically, because it pits two basic but opposing American views about government that have existed since the Revolution.

Ford seems to be attacking not just the amount of federal spending and the spread of federal control, but a notion he fears might also become ingrained in the American spirit — that bills are indefinitely postponable, and that meanwhile you can get something for nothing.

Open Dated for Freshness

Sonya Saunders
Kroger Consumer and Information Specialist

At Kroger, you'll find freshness dates on some 1900 food products. We date items such as milk, eggs, bread, fresh meat and produce, plus many items other grocers don't usually open-date . . . like jelly, snack crackers or peanut butter.

What does this freshness date mean to you—the consumer? The easy-to-read month and day (unlike old-fashioned code-dating) indicates the last day a product may be sold in our store. That is so we're both sure that the product will be fresh when you buy it and fresh in your home for an average usage period (or longer).

At Kroger, we believe you have the right to know more about the foods you buy. That's why we voluntarily began open-dating more foods than just about anybody else in the country. This is one more Kroger service designed to help you—the consumer.

Sonya Saunders

TOTAL SATISFACTION GUARANTEE

Everything you buy at Kroger is guaranteed for your total satisfaction regardless of manufacturer. If you are not satisfied, Kroger will replace your item with the same brand or a comparable brand or refund your purchase price.

We also guarantee that we will do everything in our power to have ample supplies of all advertised specials on our shelves when you shop for them. If, due to conditions beyond our control, we run out of an advertised special, we will substitute the same item in a comparable brand (when such an item is available) reflecting the same savings or, if you prefer, give you a "RAIN CHECK" which entitles you to the same advertised special at the same special price any time within 30 days.
